

Why
God Made Everything

... as shared with
David A. Rives
Mark Fredrickson & Tom Newsom

*Every day, somewhere in the world,
a little girl asks her father:
“Daddy, why are there trees?”
and the father answers,
“Because God made them, sweetie.”
Which is fine, except...*

What if little “sweetie” wasn’t satisfied with that answer?

What if she wanted to know why God made those trees?

*In fact, why God made everything, since everything has to be here for some reason;
it can’t all be by chance!*

And, since the big people can’t seem to give her any answers, it looks like the only way she’s going to get those answers is by coming up with them on her own.

*Which...she does!

Enjoy!
